

Passing on Our Cultural Traditions to Future Generations

Saturday 23 March 2019, Tara Theatre, London

A Conference Hosted by the ICOMOS-UK Intangible Cultural Heritage Committee and Supported by Arts Council England

Storytelling, performing arts, rituals and festive events, healing systems, crafts, culinary traditions, fishing and gathering practices are just some of the living traditions of the UK's vast intangible cultural heritage.

Questions regarding records and conservation arise: how and why should living heritage be preserved? How can a culturally aware and inclusive framework be created and implemented?

The Conference will be a platform to explore how practicing communities, civil society, arts and heritage organisations can help to promote and pass on our customs and cultural traditions to next generations.
